Propagation from K7RA and ARRL Bulletin

Sunspots disappeared this week. Five days with no spots is the longest since May 9-19, 2010, when we saw 11 days in a row in which the Sun was spotless. Since then there has only been the occasional day or two that was spot-free. April 2010 saw 13 consecutive days with no spots, followed by one day in which the sunspot number was 12 (indicating the emergence of a sunspot group with two spots), only to be followed by another spotless day, April 29.
