SB PROP ARL ARLP021 (from ARRL) ARLP021 Propagation de K7RA

The bulletin this week is coming to you from Felton, California, where your author is attending a camp for blues dancers.

Our Sun was certainly quieter this week. Average daily sunspot numbers were down nearly 17 points to 51.6, and average daily solar flux declined nearly 9 points to 83.2. The latest prediction is for solar flux to remain low at about 85 on May 27-29, 80 on May 30 through June 3, then rise to 90 on June 4, then 85 on June 5-7, and back to 90 on June 8-11, peaking at 95 on June 12.

The same prediction has some geomagnetic activity this weekend, with planetary A index on May 27-30 at 10, 15, 12, and 10, then declining to 5 on May 31 and into the first week of June. The moderate activity on Saturday (May 28) is due to a solar wind stream.

Geophysical Institute Prague predicts unsettled conditions on May 27, active conditions May 28, unsettled May 29-31, and quiet on June 1-2.
